

International Journal of Healthcare Simulation (IJoHS)

IJoHS is the official journal of two leading healthcare simulation societies:

- Pan Asia Simulation Society in Healthcare
- Society for Healthcare Simulation

Publishing quarterly issues and additional supplementary content, IJoHS will be the go-to publication for global healthcare simulation news and research.

Open access and single-blind peer reviewed, the journal publishes content from the world's leading healthcare simulation practitioners and researchers.

Style notes

- Advertisements must be legal, decent, truthful and comply with the relevant laws, regulations and industry codes for the geographic area in which they will appear.
- Advertisements for products making therapeutic claims but without marketing authorisation or CE marking (or local equivalent), should be submitted with all claims substantiated in full length research papers published in peer reviewed journals.
- IJoHS does not allow advertising or interactions with advertisers and potential advertisers to influence editorial decisions.
- Advertising is subject to editorial oversight. IJoHS's editor-in-chief, editorial board and management reserve the right to accept and reject advertising proposals. If a proposal is refused for reasons outside these guidelines, the editor-in-chief will provide an explanation.
